

The day after a fresh snowfall in a small New England town, Robert McQueeney boundled up his four and a half year old son and three year old daughter and took them tobogganing. He lovingly remembers his son, frightened, but determined, riding the toboggan down the hill by himself for the first time. Three weeks later, McQueeney was in handcuffs, accused by his estranged wife and a therapist of raping his son on the same weekend that he had gently coaxed him to make his first toboggan ride. After two hours in a jail cell, McQueeney was released on $5,000 bond. His parents brought him home in a daze. He faced up to forty years in prison. During the next two and one half years, McQueeney spent nearly every cent he had and his parents sold their home in order to defend him. Finally the case came to trial. Not only was he found innocent, but the jury cheered and hugged him after the verdict. McQueeney's ordeal illustrates what happens when a nation is caught in the grips of two equally heinous crimes: the first is an innocent child molested, the second is an innocent adult arrested. The psychological repercussions of both unpardonable sins are devastating.

I cannot tell you how many times in my teaching career very distraught Christians have come to me to ask about the unpardonable sin and. Unpardonable Sin - What is this unforgivable act? Can I commit it? What if I already have? Will God forgive me?. Answer: The unpardonable/unforgivable sin or "blasphemy of the Holy Spirit" is mentioned in Mark 13:30 and Matthew 23:35. Jesus said, "Truly I tell you.

If ye deny the Holy Ghost and know that ye deny it, this is a sin which is unpardonable, Alma 11:6 (Jacob). They have no forgiveness, having denied the. The concept of an unpardonable sin has been a source of difficulty for many because it seems to go against the Bible's teachings about grace. We understand .
